

Vewd unveils a “supercharged” version of Radioline’s appTV, featuring AudioBurst technology

Provides real-time content from thousands of global radio stations allowing listeners to curate their music and news listening experience

Las Vegas – January 9, 2019 – Vewd, the world’s largest smart TV OTT software provider, today unveiled a new version of Radioline’s appTV at CES 2019. Now, Radioline’s appTV will be available for tens of millions of Vewd-enabled devices from Sony, Hisense, Philips, and TiVo, among others.

Radioline is Europe’s number one online radio provider, aggregating 90,000 streams of stations and podcasts from 130 countries. The new appTV expands on Radioline’s long-standing Vewd partnership by integrating AI listening and voice indexing technology from AudioBurst, a voice search platform that makes audio discoverable. The new “supercharged” app offers the following new features:

- More than 100 curated channels, packed with the best content pulled from RadioLine’s vast content library
- An Electronic Program Guide (EPG) that integrates specific clips extracted by AudioBurst using their advanced AI technology
- A fresh collection of news clips from thousands of top US stations, available completely on-demand minutes after the broadcast
- A personal mode that curates sources and topics based on individual interests

- 40,000 native podcasts and replay streams, within a specially-designed podcast player

"We are excited to extend our partnership with Vewd and their integration of our upgraded appTV. Together we are giving consumers ultimate access to radio content from around the world," said Xavier Filliol, CEO, Radioline.

"We're excited to bring the newest Radioline app to millions of smart TVs," said Daniel Nordberg, Senior Vice President, Partnerships, Vewd. "A smart TV is the core of an immersive in-home entertainment experience, making it the natural device for social, lean-back listening. With their new app, Radioline greatly enhances the consumer experience in the Vewd App Store by allowing users to not only watch but also listen to their favorite content."
